Regulatory Tracking Summary

01 January 2010

This report summarizes regulatory items reviewed by the NASA RRAC PC. Items that appeared to have limited interest to the NASA community, or are provided for information only, are shown in light gray text. Notes and comments by the RRAC PC are shown in bold, blue text under "Description." Related documents and citations, such as "71 FR 51967," are linked to the appropriate document for quick access. Suggested follow-up actions are noted with significant items; users are advised that other follow-up actions may be appropriate for their program or facility.

Previous issues of this regulatory summary are archived on the RRAC PC website at <http://www.nasa.gov/offices/rrac/home/>. Comments, questions, suggestions, and requests for further information should be directed to the RRAC PC Manager, Sharon Scroggins at 256-544-7932 (sharon.scroggins@nasa.gov).

FED01012010-4	Climate Change Land Protection Planning	12/31/2009	74 FR 69335	Notice	An Assessment of Decision-Making Processes: The Feasibility of Incorporating Climate Change Information Into Land Protection Planning Announces a public comment period for the draft document titled, "An Assessment of Decision-Making Processes: The Feasibility of Incorporating Climate Change Information into Land Protection Planning." Report examines the decision-making processes of selected programs that protect land to assess the feasibility of incorporating climate-change impacts into the evaluation of land protection programs. Assessment revealed several possible strategies for incorporating climate change information into decision making. When considering long-term acquisition strategies, land protection programs should consider both the mitigation potential of land through carbon sequestration and the adaptation potential of the land for preserving wildlife migration routes, protecting water sources, and buffering infrastructure and development from storm events. Comments due 02/01/2010.

1.2 Other News and Developments

1.2.1 EPA Announces Actions to Address Chemicals of Concern

EPA has announced a series of actions under TSCA for four chemicals that raise health or environmental concerns. EPA intends to establish a “Chemicals of Concern” list and is beginning a process that may lead to regulations that could require significant risk reduction measures.

The substances EPA is addressing in these actions are phthalates, short-chain chlorinated paraffins, polybrominated diphenyl ethers (PBDEs) and certain perfluorinated compounds (PFCs), including perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA). These chemicals are used in the manufacture of a wide array of products and have raised a range of health and environmental concerns. EPA also recently announced that three U.S. companies have agreed to phase out decabromodiphenyl ether (deca-BDE), a PBDE that is widely used as a fire retardant in certain applications. Further information about the deca-BDE phase out is available in a summary on the RRAC PC website.

The specific actions EPA announced include the following:

- Adding phthalates and PBDEs to the concern list.
- Beginning a process that could lead to risk reduction actions under Section 6 of TSCA for several phthalates, short-chain chlorinated paraffins and perfluorinated substances.

- Reinforcing the deca-BDE phaseout, which is scheduled to take place over 3 years, with requirements to ensure that any new uses of PBDEs are reviewed by EPA before introduction or reintroduction to the market.

More information regarding these actions is posted on the EPA website.

1.2.2 EPA Releases New Mobile Source Emissions Model

An updated version of the Motor Vehicle Emission Simulator (MOVES) model, MOVES2010, is now available for use to estimate air pollution from cars, trucks, and other on-road mobile sources. MOVES2010, which replaces EPA's MOBILE6.2 emissions factor model, also can calculate the emissions reduction benefits from a range of mobile source control strategies, such as inspection and maintenance programs and local fuel standards. EPA plans to publish a notice in the Federal Register approving MOVES2010 for use in meeting official state implementation plan and transportation conformity requirements.

The CAA requires EPA to regularly update the way it calculates mobile source emissions. EPA used data collected from millions of cars and trucks gathered since MOBILE6.2 was released in 2004 to increase the accuracy of the MOVES2010 model.

For the first time, the model can estimate emissions on a range of scales from national emissions impacts down to the impacts of individual transportation projects. Another improvement is the ability to express output either as total mass (in tons, pounds, kilograms, or grams) or as emissions factors (grams-per-mile, and in some cases, grams-per-vehicle). These changes to EPA's approach to mobile source emissions modeling are based, in part, on recommendations made to the agency by the National Academy of Sciences.

More information regarding the MOVES2010 model can be found on EPA's website.

1.2.3 Western Climate Initiative

The Western Climate Initiative (WCI) has scheduled a "WCI Partner" meeting for 20 January 2010 in Phoenix, Arizona. Participants can join the meeting in person or via teleconference. A "Stakeholder Update Call" is scheduled for 4 February 2010. Please refer to the following website address for further WCI event information: <http://www.westernclimateinitiative.org>.

2.0 State Regulatory Reviews

The following sections provide details about the regulatory actions reviewed for selected states in which NASA facilities and related operations are located.

2.1 Alabama State Regulatory Review

This summary includes items that were reviewed for potential impacts to NASA Centers and Programs in Alabama.
